OVERVIEW

Massage therapy can benefit your horse at all stages of life. For the young horse just starting training or the working athlete, it can help increase muscle tone and flexibility, relieve adhesions and spasms, and aid in relaxation. If your horse is injured, it can help by increasing circulation and movement of lymphatic fluid, and address uneven muscle development caused by compensation patterns. For the senior equine, massage can improve immune function and enhance their sense of well-being, and help with stiffness, aches and pains.
