OVERVIEW

Design • Build • Teach Equine Facilities & Trail Courses Done Right With decades of hands-on experience in the horse industry, Mark Bolender and NW Steel Design specialize in creating functional, beautiful equine environments built to perform. From custom arenas and barns to thoughtfully designed trail courses, each project is developed with the horse and rider in mind—combining safety, usability, and long-term durability. What sets Mark apart is his ability to not only design and build exceptional facilities, but also to teach and demonstrate how they are best used. Through clinics and educational opportunities, Mark works directly with horse owners, trainers, and facility managers to improve confidence, problem-solving, and performance—both on the trail and in the arena. In addition to his hands-on work, Mark is an accomplished author and educator, having developed books and instructional DVDs focused on trail training, obstacle work, and practical horsemanship. He has also contributed numerous articles...
